

I have experienced significant adverse reactions to some foods since 1994 - doctors have not been able to identify cause. Are foods I am allergic to being used to alter other foods - esp. grains?

Dear Dr. Henney,

I am distressed that the Food and Drug Administration is ignoring medical and scientific warnings about genetically modified food. I believe that governments should never have approved genetically altered food without insisting on rigorous testing.

I strongly urge the FDA to reverse its policy and demand long-term study for possible adverse environmental and health effects before these foods are allowed on the market. I also insist that the FDA require labeling of all genetically engineered foods.

Sincerely,

Christine Wilkinson
